AG Mednet partners with MGH

AG Mednet Inc. of Boston said that its network has been selected by Massachusetts General Hospital to make certain kinds of diagnostic imaging more widely available.

AG Mednet, which provides a diagnostic imaging exchange network, said it will transport diagnostic images from remote sites that require 3D post-processing services to the MGH 3D laboratory and return images resulting from the 3D process.

"We have decided to launch the MGH Tele3D service to offer other hospitals and imaging centers the same level of clinical quality, consistency, and reliability available at MGH and to make available to the broader imaging community the specialized expertise we have developed," Gordon J. Harris, director of the MGH 3D Imaging Service, said in a statement.
